PROHIBITION—ADOPTION—REPEAL

The timetable of prohibition and its enforcement acts and final repeal is as follows, as to nation and Rhode Island:

On Jan. 16, 1919, Nebraska, the necessary 36th state having ratified, the 18th amendment became effective, one year later, Jan. 16, 1920. Rhode Island and Connecticnt were the only two states that eventually failed to radify, Rhode Island by rejection in both branches of the legislature, Connecticut in one. The federal Volstead Act, designed to enforce the amendment forbidding sale of any beverage of more than .5 percent of alcoholic content, was vetoed by President Wilson on Oct. 27, 1919 and passed over his veto the next day.

In a test referendum in 1930, Rhode Island voters overwhelmingly asked repeal of prohibitiom, 171,690 to 47,652. Hopkinton being the only town to vote to retain prohibition.

The Congress on Feb. 20, 1933, voted to submit the question of repeal of prohibition to the states, and on April 7,1933, President Roosevelt's signature made sale of beverages of 3.2 percent of alcohol legal, re-defining the Volstead Act's definition of what was intoxicating. Rhode Island's popular vote for repeal at a special election May 1, 1933, was 150,289 to 20,926. A state convention unanimously ratified the 21st (repeal) amendment on May 8, 1933. Utah's vote on Dec. 5,1933, the 36th necessary state, abolished the prohibition amendment.

In anticipation of repeal, the General Assembly already had adopted a law in 1933, drafted by a blue-ribbon commission, for control of liquor and "promotion of temperance." Many times later amended, it originally allowed sale only of ale, wine and beer in Class C saloons, prohibited women snd minors to serve liquor in hotels, restaurants and dining cars and subjected policemen to fines for failure to enforce the new law.

RHODE ISLAND CROP REPORT—1980

U.S. Dept. of Agriculture

APPLES

Commercial apple production in 1980 was 131,000 42-pound units, up 10 percent from the 1979 crop. Value of production, $919,000 in 1980 was 39 percent higher than the 1979 crop value. Quality of fruit was excellent, but dry wather kept the apples small and caused an early fruit drop. Color developed slowly.

HAY

Production of all hay totaled 18,000 tons, down 4,000 from 1979. This hay was cut from 11,000 acres both years. Average yield per acre was 1.64 tons in 1980; in 1979 yield was 2 tons per acre. Value of the 1980 crop was $1.3 million, compared with $1.6 million for the 1979 crop.

SILAGE CORN

Corn silage production for both 1980 and 1979 totaled 56,000 tons. Average yield was 14 tons per acre. Value of production was $1.6 million in 1980. This was 4 percent greater than the 1979 value. Total acreage harvested in both years was 4,000.

POTATOES

Potato production totaled 736,000 hundredweight in 1980, 3 percent less than in 1979. Area harvested was 3,000 acres, 100 less than in 1979. Yield was 230 hundredweight per acre, the same as in 1979. With higher prices in effect, the value for the 1980 crop was $6.3 million, more than twice the $3.1 million value of the 1979 crop.

VALUE OF PRODUCTION

The total value of the four major crops produced in Rhode Island in 1980 was $10.1 million, a 30 percent increase from 1979. Potatoes contributed over half (55 percent) of the total value. Silage corn was second with 15 percent, hay was third with 13 percent, and apples were last and comprised 10 percent of the total.

Showery spring weather delayed spring planting. Lack of sufficient rain later in the growing season prevented yields from exceeding previous year. Hay crop growth was rapid during May and early June. Curing weather was excellent after mid-June, but a dry mid-summer retarded regrowth and reduced yields of later cuttings.

I know no safe depository of the ultimate powers of society but the people themselves; and if we think them not enlightened enough to exercise their control with a wholesome discretion, the remedy is not to take it from them but to inform their discretion by education.

Thomas Jefferson, Letter to W. C. Jarvis, September 28, 1820.

CRAWFORD STREET BRIDGE

Composed of six units, spanning 1,147 feet of the Providence River between downtown and the East Side, the Crawford Street bridge is the world's widest bridge. Major repairs costing $821,943 were authorized in 1965, and extensive steel and concrete replacement made. The roadway on the west side was widened to three lanes.

The first bridge across the river was erected in 1660 at Westminster Street, but was washed out several times. The last of the six links in the present bridge was erected in 19[illegible]. The sections are: Crawford, 577 ft.; Weybosset, 170 ft., Washington Row, 170 ft.; Burnside Postoffice and Exchange bridges, 250 ft. each.

STATE MEDICAL CENTER

The Medical Center comprising infirmary, mental diseases and "poor farm" functions created 88 years earlier at Howard was named and reorganized in 1962. It was a modern outgrowth of the original Poor Laws codified in 1798, covering care of the poor, sick and petty criminals. Modified near the turn of the 19th century when what had been called the State Farm became a formal institution. In the year 1966-67 the modern Medical Center had a still further change in operations, divided into two major units: a 852-bed institute of Mental Health; and the 810-bed General Hospital. The Institute of Mental Health provides full psychiatric services and a Day Care Center and outpatient department. The Center General Hospital includes eight medical and surgical buildings, four geriatrics buildings, plus an admitting ward and a modern laboratory.
